Srae Ambel district has become the third district in Koh Kong province to be declared mine-free today, following Kiri Sakor and Botum Sakor districts, with the support of the Indian government to Cambodia.

During the ceremony marking Sre Ambel district's mine-free achievement, Senior Minister Ly Thuch, First Vice-President of the Cambodian Mine Action and Victim Assistance Authority (CMAA), noted that the Embassy of India has focused its support on Koh Kong province, where demining activities are currently progressing in Mondul Seima district.

The Minister emphasised that the clearance work has not only saved lives but also enabled communities to live free from the threat of landmines, enhancing their quality of life through the safe and productive use of their land.

Sreng Hong, Deputy Governor of Koh Kong province, described the mine-free status of Sre Ambel district as a promising sign for the province's security and development. He emphasised that it not only boosts economic growth and improves living standards, but also attracts international tourists and investors, reduces migration, and ensures safe land for farming.
